VOLUME 1 ISSUE 3

MARCH 9, 2010

Barry Poglein demonstrates kinetic art.

Barry built a kinetic art form using construction paper and glue. Each time Barry creates one of his art works, it is an original. He has built his art for a number of venues, including art shows and at senior citizens workshops. A turned marble is sent down the chute trying to have it complete the run without falling off the ramp.

Bob Henry aided Barry by demonstrating a method of turning a marble. It has to be round in order to properly travel the chute. Making the marble as round as possible is probably one of the biggest challenges. Bob shows how to do that by making custom head and tail stock chucks.

Barry issued a challenge to present a plaque to the first person who could turn a marble and run it down the chute without having it fall off. Bob talked one of our visitors into turning a marble and sending down the chute with him. John Charles, a visitor from Jeanette turns a marble to challenge Bob and get the plaque from Barry.

As the marbles flew down the chute, Bob Henry emerged victorious and snatched up the plaque. Sorry John, hope you still come to the meetings. All in all, the kinetic art and the marble turning demo made for a very innovative meeting.

Visitors to the March Meeting

We were pleased to welcome three visitors to the meeting this month. We hope they decide to come back and join our membership.

Welcome to John Charles from Jeanette, and Dave Dudney from Greensburg and finally Paul Lutz, I apologize, I didn't get where Paul is from.

Again, we would like to see all of you come back and join our turning family.

Mark St Leger

Mark St Leger will be giving a one day demonstration for Turners Anonymous on April 24, 2010. There will be a cost of $35 for the demo. This will help the club defray the costs of bringing Mark in. If you are not familiar with Mark's work, check out his website at www.markstleger.com. The meeting is at the Center for Contemporary Crafts on Smallman Street in the Strip.

April Meeting Agenda

The next meeting of the ICWTA will be Tuesday April 13. Same time, same place. Terry Morrill will be conducting the demonstration this month. He will be discussing and demonstrating turning hollow form vessels. Terry will be turning small hollow vessels with a variety of enhancements, much in the style of Molly Winton. You can view Molly's work at www.turningmaven.com. Very nice work.

Future Demos

If you have a process, or technique that you would like to share with the club, please don't be bashful. Talk with Andy or Bob Henry about it. If you are too shy to turn in front of a crowd, there maybe a member who would represent you and do the demo in your stead.

If you don't have any thing you would like to share with the group, but there is something that you would like to see, also let Andy or Bob know and maybe they can arrange a demo or a lecture. Remember, this is YOUR club.

Summer Events

Summer is just around the corner. That means that we will be representing the club in different venues. The first will be Canal Days in Saltsburg. This occurs on the first weekend in June. Please try to get involved even if all you do is to stand around and talk to folks about turning, and the club. Remember if you wish to turn at this event, you must be a member of AAW.

Bob Henry informed us last meeting that Blairsville may not be holding Diamond Days this year. He will keep us informed as to whether this will happen or not.
